

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

The present invention relates to a home entertainment system and method for providing adaptive scaling of selected features on a screen page displayed by an entertainment system. The entertainment systems receives programming data associated with a show, and displays the programming data on a screen page. The user is then prompted to select at least one feature of the screen page for scaling and to provide a scaling factor of the at least one feature. Various embodiments are disclosed.

OFFICIAL RECORD